

Giving a Document a Title

The first field of every document type (Actions, Conditions, etc.) is a title field for explicit naming of each document.

The title may affect the execution order of Actions, as Actions with the same Runtime and priority are executed in alphabetical order - for further details see Understanding order of execution.

For ease of use, title of a document should be unique across all documents within the MarvelClient Configuration database. This is not a requirement, but highly recommended to prevent confusion.

The title of a document may contain any characters except for a carriage return (newline).

In edit mode around 80 characters fit into the title field. Even though you can specify much longer titles, it is recommended to keep them short and descriptive.